

Revenge

They said I was jealous
And took away the key
They said I was mad
And shipped him out to sea

But justice made me do it
She whispered in my ear,
“Take it all away,
Turn the love right into fear.”

I watched them scabble, watched them scream
The plot unraveled like a string
I closed the door, and turned the lock
And looked to what this life could bring

I was power, I was strength
Like a woman's supposed to be
They'll tell the story, tell the tale
Of devastating tragedy
But little do they know that jealousy is tame
The green-eyed monster wasn't her — it was me,
Who from the deepest darkness came
And gave it all away
